N. Perwitz, M. Fasshauer, J. Klein. Cannabinoid Receptor Signaling Directly Inhibits Thermogenesis and Alters Expression of Adiponectin and Visfatin. Horm Metab Res 2006; 38: 356–358

Fig. 1b shows the identical image for the control and CB agonist-stimulated cells. The correct picture of control and CB agonist-treated cells is shown below:

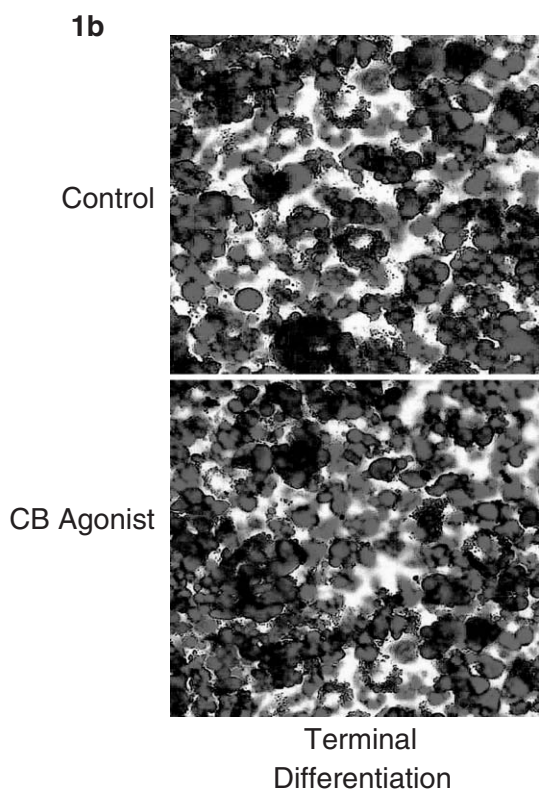

Fig. 1 Cannabinoid signaling directly inhibits thermogenic UCP-1 without affecting terminal differentiation, and differentially regulates visfatin and adiponectin in brown and white adipocytes. Brown adipocytes were treated for (a) 2 h, 4 h (insert), and (b) chronically (9 days) with selective cannabinoid Cb1 receptor agonist WIN 55212–2 (CB Agonist) at the concentrations indicated (insert in a and b: 1 mM).
